Editorial Review

From the Author

I was decided to writing my third book, Don't Dare Die Unprepared - The most important book you will ever own, after a close friend of mine unexpectedly passed away. This friend did not leave behind any special instructions, or organized information, for his loved ones to reorganize family matters. The family was swept into a giant whirlwind of problems - big and small. Each problem needed to be dealt with and resolved, and everything together demanded an ongoing daily struggle over an extended period - and at a most difficult time.

I asked myself over and over: Why do intelligent, normal people - who worry so much about their loved ones, who are successful in their careers and in managing their home and family - overlook the need to organize their affairs and, as such, endanger the economic and future welfare of not only themselves, but of their dear ones who are left behind?

Disorganized conduct in today's modern era is disastrous - but totally unnecessary. Most people cannot even conceive of the range of different matters that must be dealt with in their day-to-day lives, or which will need to be dealt with once they are gone. This is why I came to the conclusion that people are in need of a guide (a sort of "guide to the perplexed") to help them organize the present, prepare for the future, and offer answers to the many questions that people are afraid to even ask.

I think that my book, Don't Dare Die Unprepared, is mandatory for every home, and is the most important gift that you give to yourselves and to those dear to you - even though it is clear to me that few would prefer as such.
