The Gospel of Hemp: How Hemp Can Save Our World By Alan Archuleta

In 1916, the USDA published Bulletin No. 404, a report on using hemp hurds as a paper-making material. The bulletin proclaims that: "Without a doubt, hemp will continue to be one of the staple agricultural crops of the United States." The report also warns that: "Our forests are being cut three times faster than they grow." It finds that (over a 20-year period) 10,000 acres of hemp can produce the same amount of paper as 40,500 acres of trees. The test results are so favorable that USDA Bulletin #404 is printed on paper made from hemp!

"The Gospel of Hemp" explains why a crop that was hailed as a "one of the staple agricultural crops of The United States" in a U.S. government report was deceptively made essentially illegal in 1937. The time has come for America and the world to correct this deception and injustice for the future of our planet.
